

WHY

Kawasaki (and our competitors) are betting that trials can, and will be the sport of the future for motorcycling. And, that future is right around the corner. Trials take skill . . . but just about anyone can do it. It's safe, quiet, doesn't need a lot of room. But it is exciting, and competitive . . . whether the rider is just competing with himself, or in regular competition. Later this year, a few friends, or will introduce its entry in the observed trials market . . . the KT-250, developed by former World Trials Champion, Don Smith.

Kawasaki is mounting a major trials promotion effort at national and local levels. We want to expand the sport of trials, establish Kawasaki as a leader in observed trials, and create demand for the Kawasaki trials motorcycle by the time it is introduced.
